VTA honours Andrew Eastick with WFD Chalmers Award

The Victorian Transport Association (VTA) has presented Andrew Eastick with one of its highest accolades, the WFD Chalmers Award.

The award was announced during the VTA's President's Dinner at Melbourne's Athenaeum Club on October 27.

Awarded in memory of Daryl Chalmers, who sat on the VTA's executive council for more than 40 years and was a life member for three decades, the honour recognises the services to the transport and logistics industry in support of the VTA and its members.

"Andrew has been a strong advocate for both the VTA and the transport industry in general for over 30 years and we're thrilled to be able to honour his tireless work with this award," VTA CEO Peter Anderson said.

"A passionate and driven supporter of the VTA, Andrew has sat on the executive council for 16 years and has been an active, integral member of a number of VTA committees.

"Having recently announced that he'll be stepping down, we'll be sad to lose Andrew's wealth of experience, insights and personality. However, we're sure we haven't seen the last of him, as Andrew will no doubt remain a valuable member of the VTA and the transport industry he loves."

Mr Eastick has made a significant contribution to the transport industry through his administrative roles with Comet Overnight Transport, IPEC, TNT and Toll.

Mr Eastick was honoured with the award in front of more than 100 men and women at the prestigious industry dinner, at which the Minister for Roads and Ports Luke Donnellan was a key speaker.
